Topic of the Month – "Responsibility"

"Responsibility" is a multi-pronged approach to the program, since we wonder whose responsibility is in question: ours or the person who is our qualifier for the program. When I first entered the rooms of Al-Anon, I was more than willing to heap the responsibility for failure on the shoulders of my son, the person who was continually screwing up and failing to do the right thing to get clean and sober. It was all his fault and he needed to clean up his act before I would be willing to give him my love and attention. Boy, was I wrong about that!

Now after twelve years of retrospection and program under my belt, I can easily acknowledge my own

OUR TASK FORCE meets the 1st Thursday of each month, on Zoom, 6:30-7:30pm to make recommendations on content for the website, add to the online collection, & handle disposition of various literature items to individual Al-Anon members who have a history in an area relevant to that literature.

Fall Assembly Held In-Person!

– Mike R, E-Meeting Host

And it was simultaneously held online, as a hybrid meeting, in Fayetteville, NY, a charming suburb of Syracuse, on 9/17/22. It was definitely good to see people in person and share a hug and a smile face to face... rather than on a computer screen!

Al-Anon does wonders -- living one day at a time. And with the benefits of the fellowship, we enrich our daily lives.

It was good to see people in person and share a hug. ▲ responsibility for the missteps and mistakes I made in the process. I had to look myself in the mirror and see that part of the solution would lie in facing the person whose reflection was staring back at me. I could have, should have, and would have done things differently if I zigged instead of zagged in making the choices I did over the years. Responsibility is a heavy burden to bear, but by sharing the load with the loving members of our fellowship, we carry the message of Al-Anon & distribute the love & acceptance we have learned to everyone we meet in the program.

– Mike R.

Topic of the Month – “Responsibility,” cont’d....

On the topic of "Responsibility," I have found that my recovery has lessened my responsibilities. I always took on too much and felt that I had to be responsible for myself as well as others. Al-Anon taught me I am responsible for me alone. I also do my best to meet my commitments, but I must remind myself that I do not have to take on more than what is comfortable for me, just because no one else has stepped up. I do what I can and leave the rest up to my Higher Power.
 – Maria S.

Before composing for this topic, I referenced it in Courage to Change. The whole page from March 25th was highlighted with my personal notes and comments of the page being an excellent reading! I read the page several more times and remembered that this was one of the first topics we discussed at my home meeting when I first joined Al-Anon in 2015. I was empowered by each word...what WAS my responsibility and what WAS NOT! What was my responsibility was ME, what wasn't was my alcoholic. For the past 40 years, I had meshed these roles, assuming that everyone's lives and happiness were contingent upon my involvement, later defined as my "control." What began to unfold with each meeting I attended was the realization that assuming responsibility to the extreme I was, was insanity! I repeated & repeated with the assumption that the more I could control, the quicker I could free my alcoholic of this addiction and our family would live happily. I was very mistaken! It has taken me this long & every day to realize the meaning of the three c's....I didn't cause it, I can't control it and I can't cure it. By reciting this slogan, I back off controlling others & focus on my own recovery. – Joan L.

The dictionary definition of responsibility is the state or fact of having a duty to deal with something or of having control over someone; a true leader takes responsibility for their team and helps them achieve goals.

Prior to Al-Anon I was overly responsible. For me responsibility meant take it on and do it all. Being the oldest of 8 living children it was expected that I watch the younger siblings and do other duties while I was at home.

My mother married young & did not like being, or want to be, a mother. She did eventually admit she had been molested by her father. My father was a dairy farmer who really wanted to be a veterinarian but chose to help with and take over the small dairy farm when his father died. So two unhappy people with their roles in life. They were adult children of alcoholics and fought awful when they drank.

In the attempt to keep things reasonable at home and minimize punishment I became an overly responsible child and a miss goody two shoes in school. My word for it was do, do, do. No one ever had to make a decision because I made them all, nor did anyone learn from me because I didn't share anything. Then when I finished school and moved on I eventually married a wonderful young man who was on his way to becoming a full blown alcoholic.

Well through the years my 'perfect life' of being married to an alcoholic took my soul and spirit. I was so sick and tired of being sick and tired that I ended up in Al-Anon. Oh what a relief when I found that alcoholism was a disease and I hadn't caused it, couldn't control it or cure it. The serenity prayer was my only tool for a while since I could only say the first word of it over and over again. But that was good because it helped reinforce the prayer. Then I found that A-Anon shows you that you aren't responsible for the world, you are only responsible for yourself. That was a big ouch since I thought so many depended upon me. Such a change. It didn't happen overnight! Others grow too when I respect their choices and allow them to be their own persons.

So now I am responsible to stay on my side of the street in my hula hoop and I am the only one in that hoop. Mind my own business and learn to make decisions for me rather than be so involved with others that I avoid making decisions for myself. What freedom.

I am so grateful for all I have received as a result of applying the Al-Anon program to my life. I have learned about and enjoy my serenity. Members sharing their experience, strength, and hope make it possible for me to make changes in my life. I am grateful to be available to share my experience, strength and hope but I am not responsible for what another takes. You can take what you want and leave the rest. For sure I need to be responsible for the information I share about Al-anon and Alateen and be available for the newcomer as were the members when I walked into my first meeting.

Being fortunate to have the Al-Anon program in my life I do feel responsible to show up at my home group and be available to share my experience strength and hope. As the main portion of the Al-Anon Declaration says "When anyone anywhere reaches out for help let the hand of Al-Anon and Alateen always be there and let it begin with me." – Mary D.
